Michael Tweedy drowns in Dale Hollow near Wolf River Marina launch ramp

Albany Fire and Rescue, as well the Clinton County Sheriff's Department, was called to Wolf River Marina Saturday afternoon when it was reported a man had jumped into Dale Hollow Lake and not resurfaced.

It was later confirmed that Michael, L. Tweedy, 54, of Albany, had, in fact, drowned and was pronounced dead at the scene after his body had been recovered near the ramp located adjacent to the campground at Wolf River Marina.

The incident is still under investigation by the Pickett County Sheriff's Department. The incident occurred just across the Kentucky/Tennessee line. Portions of the marina are in Kentucky, but most of the facilities are across the state line in Pickett County, Tennessee.

Pickett County Sheriff Dana Dowdy was also on hand and took over the investigation once he arrived on scene.

"We were notified around 5:30 of an incident in the campground," Dowdy said. "Sgt. Elbert Conner said a subject had gone swimming and never came in."

Dowdy said there were several witnesses who saw Tweedy swimming in Dale Hollow Lake just before the apparent drowning.

"One witness said they saw him dive in and swim underwater and pop up, go back underwater and pop up somewhere else, then he went under again and never came up," Dowdy said. "Our coroner/medical examiner ruled the death as a drowning."

According to Dowdy, Tweedy was not wearing a life jacket.

Albany Fire and Rescue was on hand to assist in the recovery of Tweedy Saturday afternoon.

"I don't know what we would have done without them there," Dowdy said. "They had it all set up with the lights and everything and it made it easier once we started searching for Tweedy."

Pickett County EMS also arrived on scene just after nine p.m. in order to transport Tweedy from the scene.

Also assisting was the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Kentucky State Police and the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency.

A complete death notice for Michael L. Tweedy appears this week on page 3.

Local law enforcement and emergency crews from both Clinton County as well as Pickett County Tennessee, and state Fish and Wildlife Resource Agency officers from both Kentucky and Tennessee worked together last Saturday afternoon and evening to recover the body of Michael Tweedy, an Albany resident, who drowned on Dale Hollow Lake.

According to signs posted at marinas on Dale Hollow, Tweedy was the 134th drowning victim on the lake since it was impounded in 1943.

Clinton Fair gets early start with events this weekend

It seems like the Clinton County Fair starts earlier and earlier each year, and it is here again! The somewhat extended version of the annual fair will begin this weekend, officially starting Friday night at the fairgrounds with the Coca-Cola Talent Show.

The 2015 version of the fair will see—with the exclusion of Sunday, June 14—eight days and/or nights of the popular community event that once again has something for everyone of all ages to enjoy.

Come out and enjoy the 2015 Clinton County Fair
Check out a complete schedule of events on tap for this year's Clinton County Fair ~ On page 7

The talent show Friday at 6 p.m. will have a $3 admission and feature acts of all types for three different age categories from six years to 22 plus with winners eligible to compete at the Kentucky State Fair.

The first weekend's events will continue Saturday morning with the annual Baby Show starting at 10 a.m. Gates will open at 8 a.m. for registration and gate admission is $2 on Saturday.

Fair activities will kick into full gear with a full week of events on Monday, June 15 with lots of pageantry and more.

The Little Miss and Mister Pageant will be held at 5 p.m., followed by the Miss Pre-Teen Clinton County Fair at 7 p.m. and a new pageant category, the Mrs. Clinton County Fair at 8 p.m. for ladies 21 and over. And, for readers not into pageants but rather outdoor events, there will be Dirt Drags starting at 7 p.m. with practice starting two hours prior to eliminations. Gate admission on Monday is $5.

The various pageants conclude on Tuesday night, beginning with the Miss Teen Clinton County Fair at 6 p.m. followed by the Miss Clinton County Fair at 7 p.m. and again, an additional event will take place on the main drag with the Lawnmower Pull beginning at 7 p.m. There is a $5 gate admission on Tuesday.

More outdoor enthusiasts will enjoy the show on Wednesday night at 7 p.m. with the ATV and Dirt Bike Rodeo, and the first of two nights of wood carving demonstrations will also be held. Gate admission on Wednesday is also $5.

The always popular Family Night for kids and adults young at heart will be held on Thursday. Admission at the gate is only $2 and, even better, in recognition of two groups, all veterans and senior citizens will get in free on Family Night. There will also be the second of two nights of wood carving demonstrations on Thursday.

Also, this year on Thursday, June 18, the Clinton County Fair will be open for special needs adults only, from 12 noon to 3 p.m. with no admission cost.

Friday will be a full, busy night at the 2015 Clinton County Fair with various activities going on, including the main event, the Demolition Derby for big cars, small cars and small trucks or SUVs that begins in the main show ring at 7 p.m. Also at 7 p.m. the Kid Power Wheels Demo Derby for 4-8 year-olds will be held and, if that's not enough, a Lawnmower Demolition Derby will also take place at 7 p.m.

Other than all the bang 'em, crash 'em up events going on, after a year's hiatus, the drawing for the tractor—a John Deere 4045-D—will take place starting at 6 p.m. in the main building. There will be a winner for each 25th ticket drawn with the final ticket being the winner of the tractor. Several cash awards, beginning with the first ticket, each 25th and next to the last ticket drawn will be awarded at

City council approves $3.9 million budget

Albany City Council adopted the 2015-16 fiscal year budget, once again discussed a nuisance ordinance and addressed Mediacom Cable's request for a renewal of its franchise agreement at its regular meeting held last Tuesday, June 2, with five of six members present.

The council first heard from water department employee Kenneth Delk who reported he had gotten a cost estimate on how much it would take to be able to run a line to a remote residence in the Cartwright Community, which would require a road borer with heavy equipment; the estimate from Patton Construction was $6,500.00.

The estimate does not count the cost to the city for labor in running the line, getting an easement and other costs.

Councilman Leland Hicks said that the $6,500 estimate would still be cheaper on the property owner than having to dig a well.

Recently, the landowner, Raymond Shelton, had addressed the council requesting help with getting water to the property, saying he couldn't get an easement from an adjacent landowner to have a line run.

The city in turn got the estimate for the work, and Mayor Nicky Smith asked Delk to contact Shelton to see if he (Shelton) would be willing to pay for the work it would require to get a water line run.

Mayor Smith also gave the council an update on ongoing water related projects, but noted there was nothing different on any project since last month.

The council once again discussed an ordinance which would relate to abandoned and blighted property in the city limits.

Mayor Smith said he had been advised by other city officials who have such ordinances that putting a maximum property tax fee on such properties wasn't a good idea. Currently, the ordinance on record does allow for liens to be placed on property that is not cleaned up, or eventually the property may be condemned.

Councilman Tony Delk suggested forming a three-person committee to work on putting together an ordinance or at least identifying problem areas. The council agreed to take referrals from the public, some of which have already been reported, about property they feel would fall under the category of abandoned or blighted property and have city attorney Norb Sohm to do further research on an ordinance that may best fit the city.

The council then had second and final reading of the 2015-16 fiscal year budget, which totals $3,960,073. The budget also contains a small increase in salary for city employees. The motion to adopt the budget was made by councilman Frankie Stockton and passed by a 4-1 vote with Tonya Thrasher, Leland Hicks and Steve Lawson also voting yes and Delk voting no.

As is the case every year, the bulk of the budget in receipts and expenditures are within the water and/or sewer departments.

A break-down by department includes: general government,

$249,611; police department, $522,417; fire department, $189,300; street department, $253,450, for a total general government fund

Albany Fire & Rescue fundraiser still underway

One of the most important first responders for both Albany and Clinton County is the all volunteer Albany Fire Department, and considering the cost it takes to keep a department upgraded and ready for emergencies, all type of equipment, large to small is needed.

The Albany Fire and Rescue is currently in its annual fundraising event to help gain a few thousand dollars to help fund the basic equipment needed for firefighters, that being the annual portrait fundraiser.

The 12th annual fundraiser began on May 18 and will continue through the middle of next week, as representatives from the studio in charge of seeking donations and handling the picture taking

Evaluation process ends the possible use of genetically modified crops on National Wildlife Refuges

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Southeast Region is ending the development of a Programmatic Environmental Assessment to evaluate the use of Genetically Modified Crops (GMCs) in agricultural practices intended to support waterfowl on its National Wildlife Refuges.

The Service will continue farming to support wildlife on selected refuges in the Southeast, but refrain from using Genetically-Modified Crop seeds. The Southeast Region farms about 40,000 acres on fewer than 50 refuges, leaving about a third of the crops for wildlife. Refuge managers in the Southeast stopped using GMCs in 2012, while work on the Environmental Assessment was underway.

The Service's National Wildlife Refuge System Leadership Team issued a memorandum on July 17, 2014, announcing phasing out of the use of GMCs to achieve wildlife management objectives throughout the Refuge System by January 2016. Upon issuance of the memorandum, the Southeast Region determined that the need to continue the preparation of the Programmatic Environmental Assessment evaluating the use of GMCs in its agricultural program no longer exists and abandons any further preparation.

The decision, that is available now in the Federal Register reading room, will be posted officially on June 8, 2015. It closes out the previously announced notice of intent to draft an Environmental Assessment on the use of GMCs on refuges in the Southeast. This action also informs the Court overseeing the settlement reached with the Center for Food Safety, Beyond Pesticides, and Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility, from a 2011 lawsuit, Center for Food Safety, et al. v. Salazar, et al., Civil Action No. 11-1457 (D.C. 2011), that we will no longer use GMC seed on refuges in the southeastern United States.

The Southeast Region refuges have roughly four million acres for use by wildlife and the American public throughout Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and the Caribbean. GMCs were primarily used on certain refuges in Alabama, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and North Carolina to meet the Service's conservation objectives to provide migratory birds, especially waterfowl, with dependable high-energy food during the winter months.

On April 30, 2013, the Service published a notice in the Federal Register inviting public input on its intent to prepare a Programmatic Environmental Assessment, and requested information and suggestions from the public on the issues that should be considered during the National Environmental Policy Act planning process and in the Programmatic Environmental Assessment. This process included five public scoping meetings in Columbia, North Carolina; Decatur, Alabama; Dyersburg, Tennessee; Natchez, Mississippi; and Alexandria, Louisiana. The Service also created a website for public to submit comments and suggestions.

The mission of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is working with others to conserve, protect, and enhance fish, wildlife, plants, and their habitats for the continuing benefit of the American people. For more information on our work and the people who make it happen, visit www.fws.gov and www.fws.gov/southeast.

REGIONAL NEWS

TOMPKINSVILLE NEWS Monroe County

Anthony Barbour, 26, of Summer Shade, appeared in court in Barren County last week after being taken into custody on Monday, May 29.

Barbour, who was the subject of a six-day manhunt, was being sought in connection with the disappearance of two-year-old Laynee Wallace, the daughter of his girlfriend.

Laynee's mother, Kelsey, told law enforcement officials that Barbour picked up Laynee on Sunday, May 17 from a friend's home and never returned.

The call reporting Laynee missing wasn't made until Tuesday, May 19.

Law enforcement officials from local, regional, state and even federal, converged on the Sulphur Lick Community near the Barren-Monroe County line.

Throughout the week, Barbour was spotted in the community at times before he was apprehended in Temple Hill.

Currently, Barbour is charged with kidnapping and burglary after he allegedly entered the home of Brenda Wood of Temple Hill and forced her to take him to Glasgow.

However, a KSP Trooper noticed Wood driving erratically and during a traffic stop located Barbour in her vehicle. Barbour, who resisted arrest (resulting in another charge), was taken into custody.

The body of two-year-old Laynee was found less than an hour later after Barbour was taken by escort back to his family's farm. Laynee's body was taken to the state coroner's office for an autopsy.

KSP Tpr. B.J. Eaton, later in the week, noted that although the autopsy had been completed, it was unclear if the preliminary report had been received.

On Tuesday, June 2, a press release from Commonwealth Attorney John Garner's office indicated that he "anticipates presenting charges against Anthony Barbour at the next scheduled meeting of the Barren County Grand Jury. These charges will relate to Laynee's death, and Mr. Barbour's conduct after her death."

However, the grand jury isn't scheduled to meet again until the end of the month.

Laynee's body was reportedly buried this last week in a private cemetery in Fountain Run.

A community-led memorial service was held June 4 at Darrell Carter Memorial Stadium in

LIVINGSTON ENTERPRISE Livingston, TN

After evading local law enforcement for 42 days, a local couple has now been apprehended and face a litany of charges.

On Tuesday, May 28, Livingston Police Chief Greg Etheredge said that the Overton County Sheriff's Department received a tip that led them to an address in the Monroe Community, where they apprehended Savannah Mabe, 21.

Mabe and her boyfriend, Curtis Edwards, 39, had led Livingston police on a rural pursuit. During the chase, the couple allegedly plowed through farms and absconded into the countryside, evading police. After that pursuit, Etheredge issued a plea for information leading to their arrests and also offered cash rewards, out of his own pocket, for information leading to their capture.

Etheredge said the sheriff's department was also able to apprehend her boyfriend later the same day.

"Upon further investigation, Detective Logan Carpenter, in conjunction with the Overton County Sheriff's Department, obtained a search warrant for the same residence in Monroe for Curtis Edwards," Etheredge said. "Detectives and officers from LPD and OCSO executed that search warrant and apprehended Curtis Edwards without incident."

Etheredge said the pair had been evading law enforcement for a good deal of time "--42 days, as a matter of fact."

"We think he (Edwards) had actually been staying in the woods a tremendous amount of the time," Etheredge explained. "He did have some help from some people. That part of the case is still under investigation."

Edwards was cuffed by Livingston Police Sgt. Chris Billings and charged with habitual vehicle offender, reckless endangerment, evading arrest, vandalism over $5,000 and vandalism over $500.

Mabe was charged with accessory after the fact, vandalism over $5,000 and vandalism over $500.

Etheredge said they had received a lot of good leads from the community and expressed appreciation to the sheriff's department and officers from the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency for the cooperation they had on the case.

A man convicted by a jury in February of the reckless homicide of Donnie Tayes was scheduled to appear in Overton County Criminal Court for a sentencing hearing but failed to report to the proceedings.

Travis Dewayne Melton, 37, of the Hanging Limb area, was listed on the May 26 docket for Overton County Criminal Court for a sentencing hearing regarding the reckless homicide and an assault with threat of bodily injury charge, but when his case was called by Judge David Patterson, he was nowhere to be found.

Representing Melton was his attorney, Michael Giamo.

After Melton's name was called in court with no response, Giamo told the judge he had contact with a family member of Melton's via telephone, but had not yet been able to reach Melton directly.

District Attorney Pro Tem Derek Smith, from Williamson County, requested that since Melton failed to show for court, a capias and forfeiture of bond be issued against him, and Patterson ruled in favor of Smith's request. Patterson said if Melton didn't appear that afternoon, a capias would be issued, bond would be forfeited and Melton would serve 10 days in jail.

The following day, the Enterprise contacted the circuit court clerk's office and inquired if Melton showed up later in the afternoon. It was answered that he did indeed show up later in the afternoon.

Because Melton was not in court Tuesday, another sentencing hearing was scheduled for August 12.

RUSSELL COUNTY NEWS-REGISTER Russell Springs

A septic tank truck driven by 29-year-old William Hill of Jamestown crashed into a home on N. Hwy. 127 at 2:24 p.m. Tuesday, June 2, resulting in one injury.

Hill, driving a 2006 Chevy pickup with the business Hill's Portable Toilet Rental and Septic Service was traveling south on Hwy. 127 when he lost control of the vehicle coming around the curve before Fields Rd. He then left the road on the right-hand side traveling approximately 300 feet before striking a house.

One house occupant was home but escaped injury.

It took some time to extricate Hill from the vehicle as the second floor partially collapsed on the truck. He had to be cut from the vehicle with the jaws of life.

Hill was conscious and attempted to help extricate himself, although it appeared he may have suffered a broken arm and possibly a leg.

He was flown by helicopter to UK Hospital in Lexington.

Deputy Sheriff Nick Bertram, investigating officer, was assisted by Sheriff Clete McAninch and Deputy David Cain. The rescue was performed by the Russell County EMS and Russell County Fire Department.

OVERTON CO. NEWS Livingston, TN

More information has emerged about the alleged armed robbery of the Twice Dailys convenience store on East Main Street that police said occurred Tuesday, May 19.

According to Livingston Police Chief Greg Etheredge, Therl Pinkston, II, 25, of Hartford City, Indiana walked into the convenience store at approximately 1 p.m. with a bandana pulled up over his face wearing a gray hoodie.

Etheredge said, "There were several customers in the store, and there were two clerks in the store. He took less than $200 from the register. He threatened to kill them. You know, a 'Give me the money or I'll kill you kind of thing.'"

Twice Dailys' manager, James Welch, said the robber made off with approximately $233.

During the course of the robbery, Pinkston allegedly fired a shot inside the store. Etheredge said officers believed the gun to be a .22 because of the size of the hole the bullet left in the wall inside the building.

Etheredge credited good Samaritans with helping LPD and Overton County Sheriff's Department officers responding to the area find Pinkston after he walked away from Twice Dailys toward Coleman's Exxon.

"They see the suspect--and I mean, they're not on his tail, they did the right thing, they kind of laid back--they saw him turn up Keaton Street and left onto Vaughn Street," Etheredge said.

LPD Sgt. Jonathan Storie and Officer Bruce Matthews reportedly watched the area, but never saw any vehicles come out. That told police the suspect was likely still on foot or at a residence, Etheredge said.

"We're basically patrolling the ballpark area all the way up to the Overton Motel and around there...looking obviously for someone on foot," he said.

Shortly, officers reportedly developed a lead, and detectives Chris Gore and Logan Carpenter gathered a description of the subject.

While the investigation was ongoing and the suspect was still on the loose, Etheredge said two males and a female were seen walking down Myers Street. OSCD Deputy Tim Reagan reportedly noted one of the individuals was wearing a gray shirt similar in appearance to the gray hoodie. When Reagan approached the three, Etheredge said they ran.

"They tried to run because they had broken into the City Pool," Etheredge said.

"They thought we were all there for them...so there was a digression."

Those suspects reportedly were picked up as the investigation into the Twice Dailys robbery continued.

Eventually, Etheredge said, the investigation led to a residence on Hilltop Drive.

"Once at the suspect's home, they (officers) encounter two males," Etheredge said.

One of the males reportedly was ordered out of the house because his clothing closely matched the description of the suspect's. At that point, the suspect barricaded himself in a bedroom inside the residence, Etheredge said.

"As the investigation proceeded, not only was he wearing similar clothing, we recovered what happened to be the same hoodie hidden under a shed out back," Etheredge said.

"At that time, we did recover a .22 pistol revolver, but we did not believe that that was the pistol," he added. He said Putnam County Sheriff's Department sent their K-9 unit in later that day, finding another gun in the grass.

Pinkston was charged with aggravated robbery and aggravated assault, according to booking information obtained from Overton County Jail. He was being held on a $150,000 bond at press time.

According to the office of Circuit Court Clerk Barbara Matthews, Pinkston waived his right to a preliminary hearing in General Sessions Court on May 21. His case reportedly has been bound over to the Overton County Grand Jury. The grand jury session is set for October 5.

Etheredge noted even though Pinkston is from Indiana and allegedly has family here, he was not in any way related to Shane David Townsley, who allegedly shot himself after having a shootout with law enforcement in Rickman on April 23. Etheredge also said Pinkston did not match the description of the individual who robbed the Rickman Dollar General, a crime that remains unsolved at press time.

"We are very fortunate in Livingston that we don't have a tremendous amount of violent crime such as this, but as the times seem to be changing, we are having more and more incidents," Etheredge said.

Tennessee Bureau of Investigation issued a warning May 14 about a potentially dangerous drug found in pills that otherwise appear to be oxycodone.

The warning said a Tennessee law enforcement agency recently received what appeared to be several 30-milligram pills of oxycodone during a traffic stop. Each reportedly was the same size and featured the signature A/215 stamp characteristic of oxycodone. However, laboratory analysis performed by TBI forensic scientists reportedly found the pills were counterfeit and did not contain oxycodone. Instead, TBI said they contained fentanyl, a pain killer 50 times as potent as heroin that can be deadly in high doses.

TBI Special Agent-in-Charge and Director of the Tennessee Methamphetamine and Pharmaceutical Task Force, Tommy Farmer said, "This disturbing discovery only compounds the problem of fighting drugs in Tennessee. We want those addicted to prescription drugs to get help, not seek pills from illicit sources. It's just a matter of time until it costs someone their life."

The release said last year, in anticipation of a proliferation of fentanyl abuse in Tennessee, TBI Director Mark Gwyn proposed the agency launch a program to protect agents and forensic scientists who may come into contact with fentanyl. The program reportedly armed the agents with auto-injectors containing naloxone, which can potentially save an individual from a fentanyl overdose.

Consumers should only use prescription medications obtained through a licensed pharmacy and avoid purchasing prescription medications online, TBI said.

Farmer said, "It might look convenient to order medicines from home, but it's not a safe alternative because you have no assurance of the quality or the actual ingredients. Furthermore, our state is ranked third in the country for prescription drug abuse. It's not just typical drug addicts, either. It cuts across demographics. It's time for lawmakers to further enhance our state's laws to address the new ways criminals are trying to take advantage of our state's residents for the sake of profit."

CUMBERLAND CO. NEWS Burkesville

Kentucky State Police Trooper Bobby Maxwell is investigating a collision that occurred early Saturday morning, May 20 on KY 449, five miles north of Burkesville.

Timothy D. Alexander, 43, of Burkesville, was operating a westbound 1998 Chevy truck when he left the roadway and struck a tree. Alexander was wearing a seat belt and was flown to University of Louisville Hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

Alexander's children, Jordan Alexander, seven months, and Timothy R. Alexander, 18 months, were both passengers. Jordan Alexander was believed to have been in a child restraint seat, but not properly restrained and was pronounced dead at the scene. Timothy R. Alexander was also in a child restraint seat and flown to University of Louisville Hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

Alcohol is believed to be a factor. The investigation is ongoing and criminal charges are expected.

Trooper Jonathan Paul, the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department, Burkesville Fire Department, Cumberland County EMS and Cumberland County Rescue Squad assisted Trooper Maxwell at the scene.

WAYNE CO. OUTLOOK Monticello

What was supposed to be a celebratory holiday weekend turned tragic after a Memorial Day weekend residential fire in Wayne County proved deadly.

That's when a family of three were killed early last Sunday morning, May 24, after the trailer they lived in caught fire.

Wayne County Coroner Forrest Hicks' office was alerted to the fire, which occurred around 4:35 a.m., after the three adult victims were found.

Hicks pronounced Hobart Piercy, 68, Laurina Piercy, 55, and James Piercy, 57, dead at the scene.

According to Hicks, all were residents of the trailer, which was located in Monticello Trailer Park off Ridgewood Avenue.

Monticello Police Department, Monticello Fire Department, Wayne County Sheriff's Department and Wayne County EMS responded to the scene of the fire.

According to Kentucky State Police (KSP) investigators, foul play was not suspected and the cause of death appears to be smoke inhalation.

Officials said no autopsies will be performed.

KSP detectives and fire investigators are still investigating the incident.

The council then discussed the franchise agreement with Mediacom Cable, with Mayor Smith informing the council that the company has requested the city renew its franchise—which expires in November—for another 15-year period. The current agreement was a 10-year agreement.

Councilman Delk asked what the city actually “has to do with the cable system” anyway, since due to deregulation of the industry, there isn’t anything cities or counties can actually do to control rates, channel line-ups, etc. Also, cities and counties make little revenue from cable companies, only in the area of franchise fees.

Mayor Smith said about the only thing the city had control over was allowing where the cable lines could be run and suggested the city once again have attorney Linda Ain, out of Lexington, work to negotiate the actual contract with Mediacom, as she did prior to the last agreement being made.

Councilwoman Thrasher questioned exactly what Ain’s work would include and what she would be able to do in negotiating with Mediacom for a franchise contract.

After some further discussion, the council agreed to have the attorney attend a future meeting to address the issues of renewing the contract.

Councilman Delk also noted there were a lot of local residents “dissatisfied” with Mediacom insofar as their services provided, channel line-up and cable rates.

The next regular meeting of Albany City Council is scheduled for July 7 at 5 p.m. and is open to the public.

continue to go door-to-door giving residents a chance to not only “buy” photos, but help the fire department with a donation as well as receiving a free 8x10 portrait to boot.

According to Albany Fire Chief Robert Roeper, the department is using a new photo studio this year out of eastern Kentucky, formerly called Master Artist Studios. Representatives from that company are doing the door-to-door solicitations with letters stating who they are for authenticity.

Residents who make a donation of $30 or more can receive a free 8x10 portrait.

Once the door-to-door solicitations are complete, the company will phone those who made donations, informing them of the time and date of the photo shoot and give them the option of buying additional photo packages.

The dates and times will be announced later, but the portraits will be taken this year at the new Albany Fire Station on Bobby Grant Drive between the Well-ness Center and EMS/Air Evac building in north Albany.

Last year, the department raised approximately $3,000 and used the funds for new fire hose nozzles, at a cost up to $900 each, axes and other items used routinely in fire fighting.

This year, the funds will be used for start-up money for another bus truck, which will cost into the thousands of dollars, according to Roeper.

Although many residents have the perception that the fire department is totally self-sufficient due to the fire dues charged to city and county residents, Roeper said the cost of operating the department and keeping equipment in working order, not to mention new equipment needed at times, was very high. The city also pays the county over $30,000 per year for emergency dispatching, part of which comes from both the Albany Police and Fire Department.

Anyone wishing to have the opportunity to have their photos taken, but are not contacted by a representative, can come by the fire department at the times of the photo sessions and be worked in. Anyone wishing to make a monetary donation—with or without a portrait—can mail it to Albany Fire Department, 204 Cross St. Albany, Ky. 42602.

Named to Dean’s List at Berea

Albany residents Jennifer Covey, Leah Claborn, and Daniel Boils have been named to the Spring 2015 Dean’s List at Berea College. A student is named to the Dean’s List who achieves a GPA of 3.4 or higher for a minimum course load equivalent to 16 semester hours.

About Berea College

Berea, the first interracial and coeducational college in the South, focuses on learning, labor, and service. Supported by Berea’s No-Tuition Promise, Berea College admits only academically promising students with limited economic resources, primarily from Appalachia. All students must work 10 hours or more weekly, earning money for books, room and board. The College’s motto “God has made of one blood all peoples of the earth,” speaks to its inclusive character, and the quality of its programs ensures that graduates from Berea go on to distinguish themselves and the College in many fields.

Attention men: Take Steps to Manage Your Diabetes for Life

by the National Diabetes
Education Program

If you have diabetes, you know the day-to-day steps needed to manage diabetes can be hard. If left untreated, men with diabetes can face serious health problems such as heart attack, stroke, kidney disease, blindness, and even the loss of a toe or foot. Diabetes can also lead to sexual problems such as erectile dysfunction. There are things you can do to prevent or delay the onset of these diabetes-related problems.

An important part of managing your diabetes is knowing your diabetes ABCs – A1C, Blood Pressure, Cholesterol, and Stopping smoking.

• A is for the A1C test. It measures your average blood sugar (glucose) level over the past three months. The goal for many people with diabetes is below seven. Ask your health care team what your goal should be.

• B is for blood pressure. If your blood pressure gets too high, it makes your heart work too hard. It can cause a heart attack, stroke and kidney disease.

Ask your health care team what your goal should be.

• C is for cholesterol. There are two kinds of cholesterol in your blood: LDL and HDL. LDL or “bad cholesterol” can build up and clog your blood vessels. HDL or “good” cholesterol helps remove the “bad” cholesterol from your blood vessels. Ask your health care team what your cholesterol numbers should be.

• S is for stopping smoking. If you smoke, get help to stop smoking. Ask for help or call 1-800-QUITNOW.

Talk to your health care team about your ABC numbers and what you can do to reach your ABC goals. Your ABC goals depend on how long you have had diabetes, and if you have any other diabetes or health problems. Ask your doctor if you should take medicine to protect your heart such as a statin or aspirin.

The NDEP offers tips to help you take action to manage your diabetes. An important first step is to set a goal for yourself. Choose something that is important to you and that you believe you can do. Then make a plan by choosing the small steps you will take. For example, start working towards getting 30 minutes of physical activity, such as brisk walking, most days of the week. If you have not been very active in the past, start slowly and try adding a few minutes each day. Ask others for help with your plan. Managing diabetes isn't easy, but it's worth it.

For more information about diabetes, free diabetes classes, or our new Diabetes Prevention Program please call the local health department and ask to speak to the diabetes educator. You may also find more information on our website at www.lcdhd.org/diabetes/. Follow us on Facebook at www.facebook.com/LCDHD or Twitter: www.twitter.com/LCDHD.

The National Diabetes Education Program (NDEP) has free resources that can help. Order a free copy of 4 Steps to Manage Your Diabetes for Life and get more information about managing diabetes at 1-888-693-NDEP (1-888-693-6337) or www.YourDiabetesInfo.org.

Ribbon cutting ceremony held to introduce community to newly purchased playground equipment at Mountain View Recreation Park

A ribbon cutting and recognition ceremony was held Saturday, May 31, at the Mountain View Recreation Park to introduce the community to newly installed playground equipment.

The project has been a long ongoing event that was successful due to the cooperation of several groups and individuals who came together in the effort to make this project happen for the youth of Clinton County.

The newly installed equipment was realized through the coordination efforts of the Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition which spearheaded the project and worked with the other sponsors as well as holding a host of fundraising efforts to help supplement the more than $75,000 total scope of the project.

In the photo at left, Healthy Hometown Coordinator April Speck opened the program by welcoming those in attendance. Above, in addition to the main cluster of playground equipment originally installed in relation to the project, a secondary purchase using surplus funds also provided a new merry-go-round unit that was just recently added to the playground area. Many of the youth in attendance Saturday enjoyed taking the added feature on its inaugural spin.

Artist Bill Guffey meets with Albany Cub Scouts

Burkesville artist Bill Guffey visited the Albany Cub Scouts pack meeting on Monday, June 8th to discuss the elements of art. The scouts learned about primary and secondary colors, elements of design, and different occupations in the field of art. Guffey then applied these concepts while displaying some of his artwork and creating a new painting. The scouts also had the opportunity to mix colors with paint and to create their own original painting. Thank you so much to Bill Guffey for investing time in our scouts and helping them to fulfill the achievements for their ranks. The Scouts are pictured here proudly displaying their paintings: Dylan Crawley, Hunter Smith, Aidan Richardson, Luke Pyzik, Drew Davis, Lex Marcum, Nathan Doughty, and Luke Cash. Back row – Cubmaster Kent Baker and Artist Bill Guffey.

With picture perfect weather on board, there were over 15,000 people in attendance at last week's South Kentucky RECC Annual Meeting in Pulaski County. Among the attractions was a concert performance by County Music star Rodney Atkins.

Over 15,000 attend SKRECC Annual Meeting

Because of near-perfect weather, over 15,000 people attended the 77th Annual Membership Meeting of South Kentucky RECC held on June 4 at the co-op farm in Pulaski County. As with years past, there were educational and informative exhibits for those in attendance to visit, including health booths, civic organizations, and businesses and many others. In addition, members were treated to some wonderful gospel music this year with opening act gospel group Midnight Cry.

For the second year, America's Got Talent contestant Jimmy Rose, from Pineville, Kentucky, appeared on the annual meeting stage. He sang the "National Anthem" and his original song, "Coal Keeps the Lights On." Featured entertainment was country music superstar Rodney Atkins, who has had many number one hits, including: "Watching You", "These Are My People", "Cleaning This Gun (Come On In Boy)", "Take a Back Road", and "It's America", as well as a host of other top charting hits. He provided a fantastic concert that included all his #1 hits. One of the highlights of each year's annual meeting is the presentation of the flags of the United States and state of Kentucky. Five SKRECC linemen, Brad Coffey, Adam Neal, Byron Koontz, Greg Hammond, and David Hughes climbed a pole set in the middle of the grounds and, with the help of lineman David Piercy and Safety Manager Eddie Black, handed up the flags and displayed them at the top followed by the National Anthem. The primary purpose for the Annual Meeting is the business meeting, which started around 7 p.m. The cooperative's bylaws provide that each year there shall be an Annual Membership Meeting for the presentation of reports from SKRECC officers and leadership. South Kentucky RECC was privileged this year to have National Rural Electric Cooperative Association CEO Jo Ann Emerson as its special guest for the meeting. Emerson addressed the membership about the Environmental Protection Agency's new regulations regarding carbon emissions at new and existing coal-fired power plants. She said the SKRECC membership, along with co-op members across the nation, need to continue with the grassroots effort to urge EPA to be reasonable when enacting regulations. During his report to the membership, South Kentucky RECC CEO Allen Anderson reported to the membership that the co-op ended 2014 with $137.5 million in operating revenue with $13.2 million in net margins. Anderson added that the co-op remains committed to controlling expenditures while ensuring safe, reliable service. Finally, he announced there will be no rate increase by South Kentucky RECC in 2015, much to the pleasure of the membership in attendance. After the Business Meeting, South KY RECC recognized the 12 Washington Rural Electric Youth Tour recipients and also awarded $8,000 in scholarships to eight high school seniors in the service area as part of the Senior Scholarship Program. South KY RECC believes that investing in the youth of its service territory has a profound effect on the improvement of the quality of life in the communities served, which fulfills its mission. South KY RECC's Mission Statement reads "South Kentucky RECC was formed for people not profit. Its mission is to reliably provide electricity and related services to its members at a competitive price, and to improve the quality of life in their communities." Joyce Gatrost, Somerset, was the grand prize winner of a Ford F-150 pickup truck at South Kentucky RECC's Annual Meeting.

TURNOVERS

BY

ALAN B. GIBSON

And Pharoah wears the Triple Crown

As the field of just eight horses worked through the last turn before heading toward the final stretch, I stood up and voiced some concern about Madefromlucky, a Todd Pletcher entry that for a brief few seconds, looked like he might be making a run toward American Pharoah's lead.

Turned out my concerns didn't last long. Madefromlucky ran out of gas about as soon as his come from behind spurt started, and as the horses came down the final stretch, jockey Victor Espinoza leaned on Pharoah just slightly, but not as much as he could have.

Pharoah kicked in what appeared to be some sort of nitrous boost and in just a couple more seconds, the seven competing horses were getting smaller and smaller and for the first time in nearly four decades, we were able to celebrate a Triple Crown winner.

I made that prediction in this space last week, but I can't take much credit for my horse race predicting skills in this case because every time I've heard that question asked in the past couple of weeks, at a rate of about 10-1, the answer has been "Yes - Pharoah will win the Belmont and the Triple Crown." (In all fairness to myself, I did pick him among my list of winners for all three of the races, and for that, my horse betting stock has gone up somewhat).

It was a fun race to watch, and with the chance for the Triple Crown win, Saturday's race was made even more exciting for part-time racing fans like myself.

Pharoah paid $3.50 on a $2 wager, and I did have a small bet on the winner - again. The bet was placed by a friend who happened to be where he could legally place a bet that day, and although I tired to get in touch with "Johnny" with instructions to just forget the winnings and bring the ticket home with him - I was too late. My Triple Crown souvenir had already been cashed in.

A Kentucky legend is going to the house

I was a little saddened last week to read in the Lexington Herald-Leader a column by one that I consider to be a Kentucky sportswriter legend, Mike Fields, that noted his final high school sports coverage would be Sunday's KHSAA Baseball State Championship report.

After that, and after 41 years on the job - 35 of which have been with the Herald-Leader - Mike is retiring and going home.

We only had one face to face meeting, briefly at a Sweet 16 basketball tournament a few years ago, but we've exchanged emails from time to time, all about issues involving Kentucky high school sports.

We did learn from each other that in addition to our love for high school sports and the athletes that play the game, we did have a couple of other things in common. Mike was one of the first recipients of the Rudy J. Ellis Distinguished Service Award from the Kentucky High School Athletic Directors Association, an award I also was a proud recipient of in 2012. We were both also lucky enough to be the recipient of by-pass heart surgery - both also in our early 40s at the time, something that has allowed us to continue to promote high school athletes for several more years (so far).

Mike did a fantastic job of keeping the state readers informed as to the goings on inside Kentucky high school sports, on every playing field.

Mike's weekly roundup of high school happenings every Friday was a must read for high school sports junkies (like myself) for many years, and his angle on the issues will certainly be missed.

Good luck to a colleague on your next chapter in life, and thanks for the past 35 years of keeping us up to date on the student athletes wearing the blue and white - and every other color of uniform in Kentucky.

Does NCAA case against Carolina echo in the Bluegrass?

North Carolina is officially on the NCAA clock. Respond within 90 days (from May 20) to a 59-page notice of allegations that include accusation of worst offenses: Academic fraud and lack of institutional control.

Five major violations Carolina administrators vigorously tried to confine to academic misdeeds and not athletics.

What relevance in Kentucky? Three decades ago, amid derisive cacklings from fans Chapel Hill to Louisville and magazine covers, University of Kentucky basketball was in the (NCAA) dock, found guilty and punished for much the same things.

√ If Carolina is found guilty of the most shameful allegations, we will see if sanctions amount to wrist slap or rise to level of the hammer job on UK in the late 1980.

Of the five allegations that reach back to early 1990s, reading between the lines: Points two, three and four amount to take-the-fall-for-the-program(s) on officials who have retired, resigned or gone elsewhere including the school president, director of athletics and football coaches.

Alleged violations number one and five are enough to cause UNC officials to quake and basketball coaches to lawyer up, prepare for plausible deniability. That the NCAA letter does not accuse basketball coach Roy Williams, one can conclude that 'ignorance to goings on' will be an acceptable defense.

Scenario: Still, the idea is intriguing - see Williams arrive at NCAA headquarters in Indianapolis in crisp slacks, best white shirt, blue tie and sky blue blazer, professorial rimless glasses and briefcase and Johnny Appleseed face ready to persuade NCAA officials "... I did not know any of this was going on and so I am not responsible and should not be held accountable."

There is precedent for the ignorance defense of course which the NCAA can apply to give Williams a pass.

Meanwhile, with 90 days to respond (from May 20) Carolina officials will have most difficulty explaining:

√ Violation number one: The institution provided impermissible benefits to student athletes.

And ...
√ Number five: The institution exhibited a lack of institutional control in regard to the special arrangements constituting impermissible benefits athletics academic counselors and staff within African and Afro-American Studies (AFRI/AFAM) department provided to student-athletes."

Having read Cheated, a poignant expose` by Jay Smith and former UNC academic official Mary Willingham about basketball and football players at Carolina, I believe, if the NCAA applies same justice to Carolina basketball as it did Kentucky three decades ago, the school's two revenue producing programs are headed for probation, loss of scholarships and maybe forfeiture of wins.

Moreover, institutionalized cheating - paper classes, gift grades to sustain player eligibility and collective look-the-other-way deniability by athletics officials at Chapel Hill - demonstrate how these things can be accomplished in secret at other big-time college sports programs.

North Carolina, according to Smith and Willingham's book, enrolled at least one basketball player who, it was discovered, could neither read or write. But he could play.

Flaws in the system that can be managed.

√ Because a college student-athlete's class load and course selections are confidential by law, legitimate progress toward a degree are subject to manipulation by those whose incentive is - keep him/her eligible - coaches and administrators.

√ And, a program prone to boast about team grade point average but not required to reveal individual players' GPA, lends itself to distortion. For instance, names of walk-ons and bench warmers frequently dot honor rolls and academic progress reports, but not scholarship players.

North Carolina. Stay tuned.

PROHM'S DONE DEAL?

Dateline March 26: News came that Murray State ball coach Steve Prohm had signed a contract extension through next year. Pay hike? $75,000 to $270,000. Radio and television contracts would hike his annual take to $300,000, not including incentives.

Prohm spoke glowingly of love for and loyalty to Murray State.

"It feels great," he said in a text to The Associated Press. "Ready to get back to work."

Contract signed and sealed, done deal, right? Maybe not.

Dateline June 8: Prohm interviewed for the Iowa State job. Fred Hoiberg had walked out of his eight year $2.5 million per year contract to coach the Chicago Bulls.

Contracts and ball coaches, huh?

AMERICAN PHAROAH

Credit put where it belongs and context too, trainer Bob Baffert said it best. "He's the one who did it. We were basically passengers."

Chief passenger is one-time goat farmer-turned-bus driver in Mexico, Victor Espinoza. The jockey said, "... I'm donating all the money to the City of Hope (Cancer Center) ."

Magnificent horse, American Pharoah. His glory days are coming ... will stand at stud for fees prices only Warren Buffett and Mark Cuban and a ball coach or two can afford.

Best description of Pharoah's ride in the Belmont came from ESPN's Ian O'Connor: "In the presence of greatness, I couldn't help but think this horse deserved to be written up on Steinbeck's laptop, or Hemingway's, and certainly not mine."

Well said all round.

Perspective? Since Kentuckyian Steve Cauthen rode Affirmed to the triple crown in 1978, 13 horses have won the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, 12 made it to the Belmont Stakes and didn't win.

Footnote. Anybody else wonder how news of American Pharoah's success played in Egypt?

NBA DRAFT

- Oldest player in top 10, Willie Cauley-Stein is 21, projected No. 8.

- Youngest bump-up to lottery pick status: Devin Booker is 18, projected 13.

In Loving Memory of Kenny Garrett

June 13, 1963 - Nov. 26, 2014

Weep not for me though I am gone
Into that gentle night
Grieve if you will, but not for long
Upon my soul's sweet flight
I am at peace, my soul's at rest
There is not need for tears
For with your love, I was so blessed
For those short years.

There is no pain now, I suffer not,
The fear now is all gone.
Put now these things out of your thoughts
In your memory, I live on.
Remember not the strife
Please do not dwell upon my death,
But celebrate my life.
We love and miss you,

The family of Nancy Faye Groce would like to thank each and everyone who brought food, all the phone calls, everyone who sent flowers and came to visit or said a prayer for us during this difficult time. Thanks for the memorials, they have been greatly appreciated. Special thanks to Bro. Donald McGill and members of Caney Branch Church and the Braswell Sisters for the beautiful songs. To the Editor

To the Editor,

There was a late night KET show that separately examined two problems in America. These problems are very closely related and should have been looked at together.

Church attendance continues to drop. Doctors and parents are having problems agreeing on how to judge the value of a new born baby's life. That child could have been born pre-mature or with a disability. Both problems point to how people feel about God.

Where does God fit in? Or does God fit in anywhere in your life?

The mother of a child born pre-mature and weighing less than two pounds had no problem seeing value in her child's life. People who go to church have no problem with giving God a place of great value. It is shown in worship at the church together with others of the same mind.

A decision must be made on what is important to you. What you spend your time doing shows what you give value to. We Americans must decide what is important. It will guide our lives. How we spend it. How it will end.

Man O’War sets record at Belmont Stakes

June 12,1920

On this day in 1920, Man O’ War wins the 52nd Belmont Stakes, and sets the record for the fastest mile ever run by a horse to that time. Man O’ War was the biggest star yet in a country obsessed with horse racing, and the most successful thoroughbred of his generation.

Man O’ War was sired by the champion Fair Play, one of the most successful sires in racing history, and purchased by Samuel D. Riddle in 1918 from August Belmont Jr., son of the racing guru for whom the Belmont Stakes was named. As a two-year-old in 1919, Man O’ War won nine out of ten races under jockey Johnny Loftus. His only loss that year came at the Sanford Memorial Stakes, in which his back was to the starting line at the beginning of the race. At that time, before the advent of starting gates, a rope was all that held horses back from starting their run. The Sanford turned out to be the only loss of Man O’ War’s racing career.

As a three-year old, Man O’ War dominated the field. Loftus was denied a jockey’s license that year, so Clarence Kummer rode “Big Red,” as Man O’ War came to be known. The horse skipped the Kentucky Derby, as his trainers deemed the mile-and-a-quarter race to be too grueling so early in the season, so the Preakness Stakes was Man O’ War’s coming out party. He won easily.

Man O’ War entered the Belmont Stakes as an overwhelming 1-to-20 favorite, largely because only one horse, Donnaconna, was entered against him. With victory over Donnaconna seemingly assured, Big Red’s real race that year was against the world record for a mile and three furlongs (2:16.8), which had been set in 1908 by the horse Dean Swift in Liverpool, England. The American record of 2:17.4 had been set by Sir Barton at the 1919 Belmont. Man O’ War took more than two seconds off both times, running the race in 2:14.2 on his way to a 20-length victory. Donnaconna finished the race a full 1/16 of a mile behind the winner.

In his final race, Man O’ War defeated the 1919 Triple Crown winner Sir Barton by seven lengths at the Kenilworth Park Gold Cup in Windsor, Ontario. It marked Man O’ War’s 20th win in 21 races.

Christy Matthewson throws second no-hitter

June 13, 1905

On June 13, 1905, pitcher Christy Matthewson of the New York Giants throws the second no-hitter of his career to lead his Giants to a 1-0 win over the powerful Chicago Cubs.

Matthewson, known simply as “Matty” to his adoring fans, enjoyed a successful athletic career at Bucknell University in Pennsylvania, where he was a star in both baseball and football. He joined the Giants in 1901, and for a year was a promising pitcher on a losing club. In the middle of the 1902 season, though, that changed with the hiring of the great strategist and player-manager John McGraw, who had made his name with the 1890s Baltimore Orioles. McGraw was recruited to manage the new Orioles of the upstart American League (AL) in 1901, but left over differences with AL founder Ban Johnson. Upon joining the Giants, McGraw immediately put the team on the road to success by accepting nothing less than total effort and making use of the aggressive style on the bases that had earlier won him fame. McGraw managed the Giants from 1902 to 1932, during which time the team won 10 pennants, five of which came between 1902 and 1916 with Matty on the mound.

A tee-totaling gentleman, Matthewson was admired for his skill and clean image and soon became the most popular athlete in the country. John McGraw was the opposite, a profane, contentious man willing to fight over any perceived slight. In spite of their contrasting personalities, the two men and their wives were the best of friends off the field. McGraw and Matthewson led the previously moribund Giants to an 84-55 record in 1903, 6.5 games behind the pennant-winning Pittsburgh Pirates. The next year, the Giants won the National League and Matthewson, who went 33-12, led the league in strikeouts for the second year in a row. Unfortunately, Matthewson didn’t get a chance that year to prove his mettle in the World Series because McGraw, known as “the little Napoleon,” was still angry with Ban Johnson of the American League and refused to let his team play. The players grudgingly forfeited their bonus checks and the second World Series was cancelled.

In 1905, the best year of his career, Matthewson won 31 games to just nine lost and ended the year with an earned run average of just 1.28, more than a run and a half lower than the league average. On this day, he threw the second no-hitter of his career to lead his team to their second consecutive National League pennant over the powerful Cubs. Two Cubs reached second base, both due to errors, or Matthewson’s no-hit, no-walk performance would have been a perfect game. He held on until his Giants scored their lone run in the ninth for a 1-0 win.

In the 1905 World Series, the Giants beat Connie Mack’s Philadelphia Athletics behind Matty’s three complete game shutouts in six days. It was the only World Series victory for Matthewson, who played on three more NL pennant winners, but lost the 1911, 1912 and 1913 World Series in spite of his brilliant pitching.

Four long distance telephone lines added

General Telephone Company has four additional long distance lines between Albany and Somerset. District manager Hubers Bush announced that on May 27, 1960, General Telephone Company increased the number of long distance lines between Albany and Somerset to four, adding to four already existing for a total of eight long distance connections. It was originally planned for these lines to be put into service on June 19, 1960. Because of the great increased demand created by the oil development, these facilities were expedited and placed into service at an earlier date than originally scheduled.

Mr. Bush stated that the General Telephone Company’s engineers are still busy engineering the remainder of the rural area and the city of Albany. The southern part of the county including Static Road and Duvall Valley and the western part along Shipley Road and Wolf Creek Dan Road have been completely engineered. At this time the engineers are working these areas up for construction projects. Construction dates for these sections are not available at this time but should be in the very near future.
